LTCC RECOGNIZES DIVERSITY

Jeff DeFranco, LTCC's Superintendent/President, recently published a Statement on Diversity in both English and Spanish, which reads in part, "Lake Tahoe Community College stands with the California Community Colleges Chancellor's Office and its Board of Governors in strongly supporting the values and benefits of diversity and inclusion; not just on college campuses, but in towns and cities large and small across the country. The current White House administration's recent executive orders regarding immigration, the building of a border wall, and its rhetoric regarding Dream Act students has caused widespread concern among California's community college students. LTCC is and always has been deeply committed to the security of all its students, and to ensuring that a safe environment is available to everyone who relies on the college to better their lives."

Student Spotlight TIMOTHY ACOSTA

Hello everyone, my name is Timothy Acosta. I was born and raised in San Jose, California. I recently moved to Lake Tahoe last fall, and fell in love with the area and environment. Currently I am working towards my Natural Science degree, with the intent of transferring to UC Santa Cruz to further my education in the field of Plant Science. Though I do plan on leaving Tahoe, I can't see the move being permanent. I love the area too much. I have found being an ambassador quite rewarding. I always love coming into work and helping students in anyway that I can. Even if it is something simple like answering questions or giving directions to the various class rooms. I remember my first week at the college was a little confusing and overwhelming, but luckily the staff and other student ambassadors were very helpful and friendly. My overall experience with the others inspired me, and made me want to become a student ambassador and pay it forward. I'm looking forward to helping and building relationships with both staff and students. If you ever see me roaming the halls or in the same class, feel free to say hi!
